

Dear Pamela,

For the last few years, BAGLY has sent out a holiday card as our “end of year” appeal. We know we can count on you to support LGBTQ youth and the programs at BAGLY without a lot of explanation, but please know how much we appreciate your generosity.

I’m writing to give you something this year.

I give you my promise: BAGLY has been holding the line in support of LGBTQ youth for 36 years, through heartbreak and happiness, and the next 4 years won’t change who we are or what we believe.

We believe what you believe.

We believe that LGBTQ youth in all of our communities deserve our support and protection. We believe that LGBTQ youth of color make excellent leaders. We believe that transgender youth harbor tremendous strength. We believe that homeless LGBTQ youth know better than almost anyone the importance of a strong community.

Like many of you, I am eyeing the future with some anxiety and trepidation. Sometimes those words feel like euphemisms for something far darker.

Yet, as you look to this generation of youth leaders you will see their determination and commitment to fighting for a world that values them as they are, regardless of the next Administration.

You will see the present struggles and the future victories.

In the days ahead I predict that we will all draw strength from LGBTQ youth who are scared but undaunted, bent but not broken.

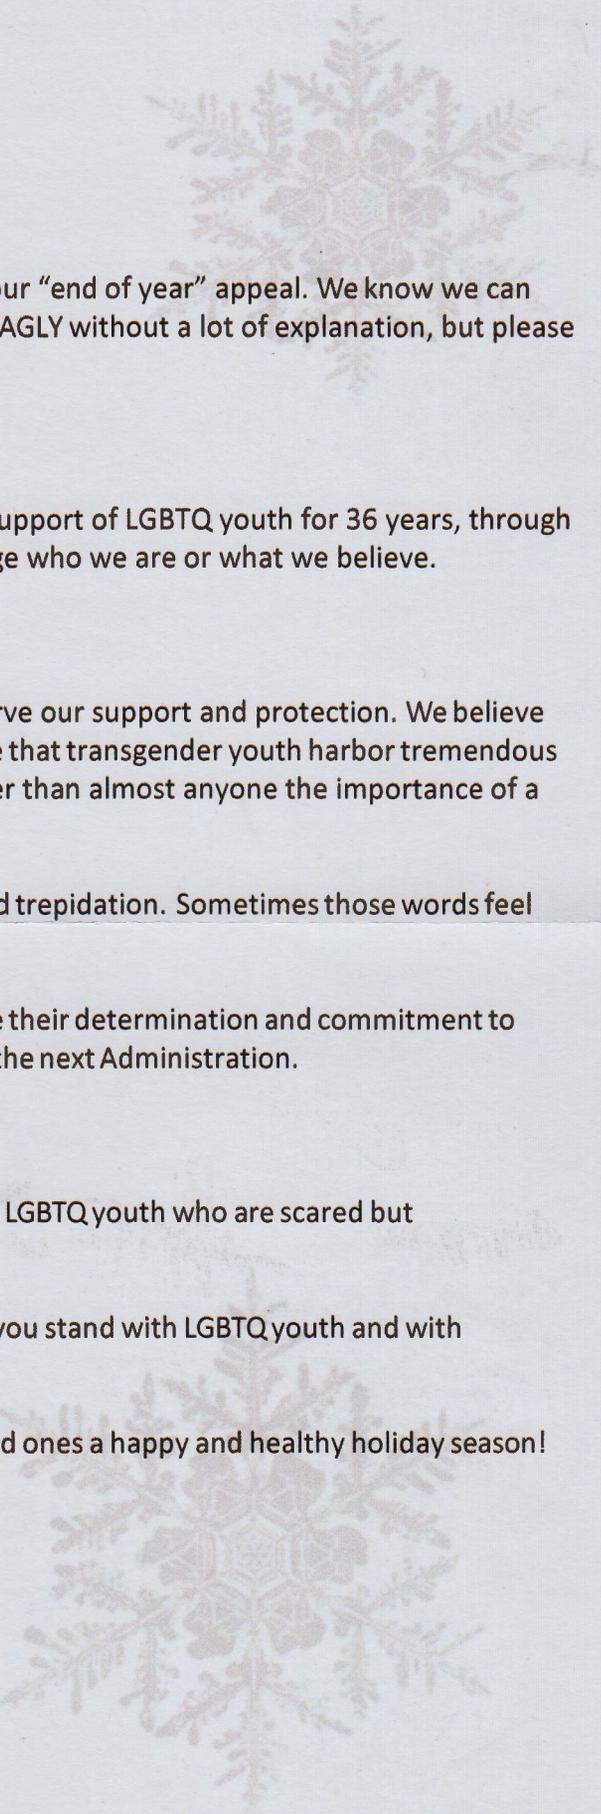

This holiday season, I invite you to hold the line with us. Will you stand with LGBTQ youth and with BAGLY?

Thank you for all your support and we wish you and your loved ones a happy and healthy holiday season!

Take care,

Grace Sterling Stowell
