

John Fetterman <info@e.johnfetterman.com> Unsubscribe to me ▾

Pamela,

We both know I don't look like a typical politician. Maybe that's why my tattoos are literally the first thing people Google about me.

Well enough Googling. Today I'll tell you about my tattoos myself, Pamela.

On my left arm I have the zip code 15104. That's Braddock, Pennsylvania, my home and the community I was honored to serve as mayor for 15 years. Gisele and I are raising our kids here in Braddock, right across the street from Andrew Carnegie's first steel mill.

On my right arm I have nine different dates. These are the dates when people were killed through violence in Braddock while I served as mayor, starting in 2005. Seven out of nine were gun deaths. I actually have to get one more date added because in June of 2018, there was another tragic loss of life.

My first tattoo came after January 16, 2006. It was my second week on the job as mayor after winning my election by a single vote. I received a call and was summoned to a police crime scene where a pizza delivery man had been robbed and killed by gun violence.

Every time Braddock lost someone was the worst feeling in the world, Pamela. In a close-knit community like Braddock, it's very likely that you know the victim and their family. It's an incredibly wrenching and personal experience as a mayor — but nothing compared to what the families have to go through.

We also worked to develop buildings that had been written off, kick-started our economy, and reduced deadly violence. My proudest moment as Mayor of Braddock is when our community went 5 ½ years without the loss of life due to gun violence.

Pamela, I'm running for the U.S. Senate because I believe that every community is worth fighting for. And I promise that I will fight for every Pennsylvanian.

But in order to build the kind of campaign that can win, we need to raise a lot of money. A big part of that is people like you chipping in. With our mid-month fundraising deadline tomorrow, I have to ask:

Will you chip in \$1 or more to our campaign right now, Pamela? Every dollar helps send me to the U.S. Senate where I'll fight like hell for your community just like I fight for mine.

If you've stored your info with ActBlue Express, we'll process your contribution instantly:

Contribute $15

Contribute $25

Contribute $50

Contribute $100

Contribute $250

Give another amount

Thanks for all you do,

John

John Fetterman

Lieutenant Governor of Pennsylvania