Pamela I have great news! The mega-dam in the heart of the Amazon, on the Tapajós river, has been cancelled!

After 30 years fighting to protect their home, the Munduruku People won one of the most important battles for their river. This wouldn't have happened if 1.2 million of us from around the world hadn't stood in solidarity with them to say no to this dam!

Please share this victory on facebook if you can, and let others know that not even huge infrastructure projects are immune to global people power.
Together we can win anything!

The last months have been intense. While the Munduruku and local communities have been campaigning, we've also done our part worldwide. We've run actions in over 20 countries, sent more than 70,000 messages message to companies that profiting from Amazon destruction is not acceptable.

There is a lot to celebrate, and the Sao Luiz do Tapajós was the biggest dam planned in the Amazon. But this doesn't mean the Brazilian government won't go ahead with the other 42 dams planned, so our work doesn't end here. We'll keep campaigning to stop new threats to Amazon's rivers.

Help us keep fighting for the heart of the Amazon too.

Thank you once more for standing up for the protection of the Amazon. The Munduruku people asked for our help and we've proved we are there for them. I can't be more proud of the Greenpeace community that have joined us in this fight.

THANK YOU!

Nick and the whole crew at Greenpeace
