Subject: It's not too late to help the kittens

View this email in your browser

Brussel Sprout has come a long way since he was found freezing cold in a shoebox when he was only a couple of days old.

He's one lucky little guy because he was brought to VOKRA and then went to live with foster mom Tania where he was bottle fed and received round-the-clock care. At Tania's he met mama Cauliflower and her kittens, Kale, Parsnip, Courgette, Broccoli and Cabbage. Cauliflower took one look at him and decided he needed to come join the Veggie Patch and that's how he became Brussel Sprout!

This year alone, more than 950 kittens have come through our doors. That's a lot of kittens!

As a volunteer-driven non-profit, we wouldn't be able to help all these moms and kittens without the support of people like you.

Kittens in our care have a chance at a happy, safe and healthy life. Once they're old enough, all the Veggie Patch kittens will be spayed/neutered and adopted into loving forever homes. And, like all the moms, Cauliflower will be spayed so she'll never have to worry about getting pregnant again and she too will have her own forever home.

Your support today will help us pay for the cost of spaying/neutering, as well as for the food, litter and extra veterinary care all these babies and their moms need.

Your gift is the chance to make a patient's light shine brighter!

Dear Pamela,

It's hard to imagine how much your heart breaks when watching your child suffer. Our son Ethan was born with a rare heart condition called Congenital Tricuspid Atresia. There were only three chambers in his heart, rather than the four he needed to live.

Ethan spent his first days in the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU) at Dell Children's Medical Center of Central Texas, near our home. I'll never forget the day my own heart skipped a beat when I walked into the NICU and all the nurses were gathered around Ethan! Imagine my relief when I learned it was because they thought he was so cute.

Ethan had two delicate surgeries over the next several months to correct his heart. I'm in awe of what they did and grateful I could stay in the hospital room with him. Everyone took awesome care -- of both of us!

Today, we need your help for kids like Ethan. Will join with other donors and be a Star for children right here in Central Texas? Will you help Dell Children's have the best technology, staff, and programs for children and families facing a medical crises like ours?

My cute little Ethan now rides his bike, goes crazy for the Ninja Turtles, and is just like any other child. I will always be grateful to Dell Children's -- and to you. Thank you for your support during this season of giving.

With deep gratitude,

Megan Jeter
Ethan's Mom

P.S. Thank you for helping families like ours with your support of Dell Children's!

“Our goal is to eradicate the Zika virus epidemic at a faster pace than any prior vaccine development effort in history.”

Dear Friend,

When the World Health Organization declared the Zika virus an epidemic and

When the World Health Organization declared the Zika virus an epidemic and an international public health emergency, BIDMC selflessly went to work. Dr. Dan Barouch's research team took the challenge and ran with it.

In less than a year, BIDMC developed a vaccine that has the potential to save countless lives. This is the first vaccine in the world that provides complete protection against the virus in both mice and monkeys.

This is an example of the pioneering work and cutting-edge research that your philanthropic support to the Annual Fund makes possible. BIDMC is a renowned leader in medical research, and your generosity allows us to respond to these urgent global priorities. We expect the vaccine to enter human trials this year, and our goal is to produce an approved vaccine as soon as possible.

DOUBLED

GOAL: $300,000

Pamela,

Donald Trump is filling his administration with one anti-choice extremist after another.

Check it out:

- Vice President-elect Mike Pence says he longs for the day that "Roe v. Wade is sent to the ash heap of history."¹
- Jeff Sessions, Trump's pick for attorney general, voted against legislation protecting abortion providers from clinic violence.²
- Nikki Haley, his U.N. ambassador, signed legislation banning abortion after 20 weeks as governor of South Carolina.³
- Tom Price, his pick for secretary of Health and Human Services, scoffed at concerns about women who can't afford reliable birth control by saying, "Bring me one. There's not one."⁴

GOAL: $300,000

It's up to us to fight back, and we've set an ambitious goal of raising $300,000 by midnight on New Year's Eve.

Click here to make a year-end donation and help us reach our goal of \$300,000 by midnight on December 31. All year-end donations will be doubled.

It's becoming increasingly clear that their priority isn't jobs, national security, "draining the swamp," or anything else Trump campaigned on. It's attacking abortion rights.

But not on our watch. And we can win because 7 in 10 Americans support legal abortion.

Even among people who voted for Trump, most didn't support him because they wanted him to ban abortion. We know that because he barely mentioned it during the campaign and didn't spend a dime on ads talking about his anti-choice views.

We will do whatever it takes to fight back, but we're counting on your help.

Climate change is the #1 environmental threat facing humanity—and we're now being called to defend our hard-fought efforts to stop it.

Stand up for climate action in 2017 with a tax-deductible gift to our Year End Campaign.

So much is at stake. With Donald Trump selecting a leading EPA nemesis to run the agency, we're going to need all hands on deck to defend our hard-fought climate progress and keep the world on a path towards a safer climate future.

One of Scott Pruitt's first acts as Oklahoma's Attorney General was to dismantle his office's Environmental Protection Unit and replace it with a Federalism Unit devoted to handling his many legal challenges against the EPA. (Pruitt has sued the EPA at least 14 times to block life-saving clean air and climate standards).

He reduced funding for "environmental law" in the AG's office from $463,000 in the year before he took office to $0 by 2014—and it has never been restored. Will he do the same at EPA?

And in 2014, reporters uncovered evidence that energy lobbyists even wrote letters for Pruitt that he then copied, word for word, onto state letterhead and sent to the President, the EPA, and other federal agencies.

Make a gift now to oppose Scott Pruitt as EPA Administrator and defend climate progress.

Climate change is a threat to every living thing on earth. And the EPA is the leading federal agency working to protect us from this grave threat.

By coming together, we can send a message to President-Elect Trump and the Senate that the elections results do not constitute a mandate against environmental protection.

24 HOURS to be #PowHERfulTogether

When Amy and I think back on why we started Take The Lead, we both say the the same thing: we wanted to build a better world for the women we loved and respected. We did it for our friends and colleagues, women we watched hit the glass ceiling again and again. We did it for our daughters, hopeful we could create the right tools to help them embrace their power and live their lives without limits. We did it because we wanted to see women reach leadership equality and pay equity in our lifetime.

Today, our ambitious goal has the potential to become a reality, allowing us to expand programs we know work and to reach millions of women. But we can only get there with your help.

Right now — for 24 hours only — every single dollar donated to our organization is quadrupled in value, thanks to the generosity of our incredible partners. You can watch in real time as donations come in at: charidy.com/takethelead. Any gift will help, and all gifts translate into more women gaining access to leadership training programs and free resources to help them take the lead in their own lives.

But here's the catch — if we don't reach our $300,000 goal, all online donations we receive as a part of this 24 hour campaign will be returned.

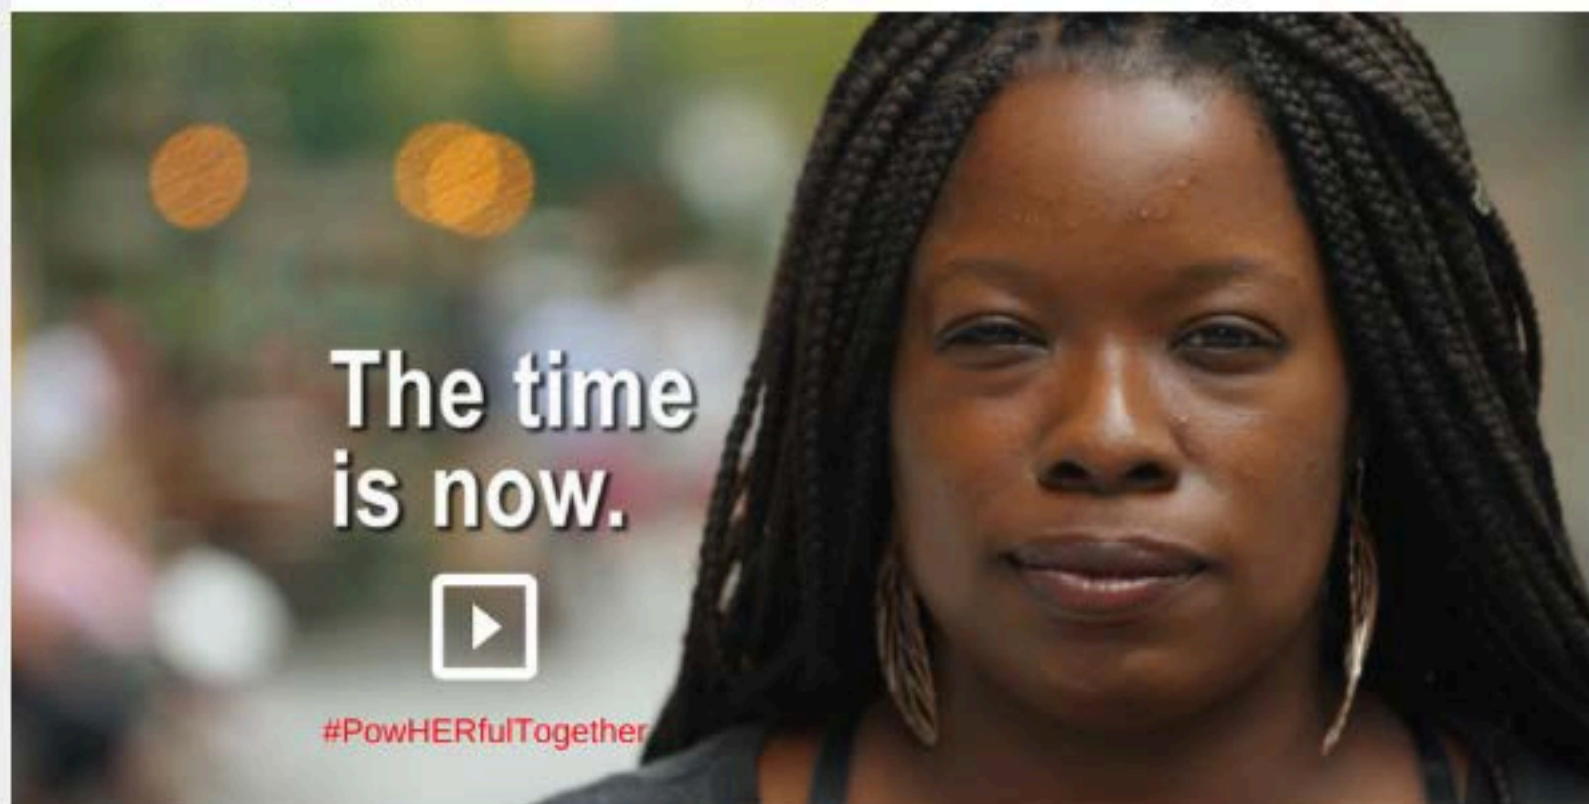

I know that life is hectic and the holidays are quickly approaching, but I am asking you to join me by pitching in and making a donation online now. Consider how far your donation will go today — $50 turns into $200, or $100 into $400 — and make a pledge in the name of your daughter, your wife, your sister or your friend.

"It's just an arrowhead," I thought

Inbox x

John Gavitt info@potomac.org via potomac.ccsend.com

to me ▾

Pat,

"Wow! An arrowhead!" I thought one afternoon when my wife Arlene and I were walking along the path that leads from our home to Hoque Creek

This past spring we were enjoying the 70-degree weather out here in Frederick County, Virginia, when I looked down and saw an arrowhead in amazingly perfect condition.

Finding and holding this arrowhead got me thinking: “was it shot for practice? hunting food? or in anger? in which century?”

Lots of images came to me, along with a deeper sense of perspective. We are on Earth for a short time only. What will we leave to our grandchildren after we’re gone? Money for relatives? Material wealth?

What about something that would benefit our community and bring joy to those who come after us... That’s what Arlene and I wanted to leave for future generations. A way to forever protect the forests and creek on our property.

With Potomac Conservancy’s help, we did just that. We permanently protected our land by putting a conservation easement on it, a legal process that ensures it can never be developed.

Three of our neighbors did the same, altogether totaling well over 500 acres of land – of forests, meadows, and creeks, protected forever. Taking care of this land will protect the water quality of Hogue Creek and the Potomac River downstream. That’s a lasting gift to the future.

None of this would have been possible without people like you putting Potomac Conservancy to work protecting special outdoor places.

When you support the Conservancy with a $20, $40, or $60 gift, you invest in healthy lands and protect upstream water sources from the threat of development.

DONATE TODAY

Over the last couple of decades, we've seen more and more of our community's beautiful lands lost to parking lots and plazas.

But it doesn't have to be that way. There are so many rural landowners and family-run farms who want to do the right thing, but need additional resources and technical assistance to protect their properties.

As an accredited land trust, Potomac Conservancy works one-on-one with private landowners to protect and restore forests in the headwaters, now totaling over 15,500 acres in the Potomac region.

Think about it... that arrowhead never would have been found if it had been covered by a parking lot or a shopping mall.

I appreciate the people who loved this land before I came along. Perhaps in the future someone will find something I've left behind in the woods, and it will cause them to also wonder about its origin. That thought really comforts me.

Please consider giving a $40, or $60 gift today to support this important work for clean water and the Potomac River's future. Click the donate button if you want to help save more land for the future.
