Dear

Imagine you are Eddie.

You are 17 years old, living with your mother and sister. At age 14, your parents divorced but you did not possess the skills necessary to emotionally process your feelings. Ever since you were a little boy, your identity was as the "protector." After your parents' divorce, you believe you failed in your role as protector of the family. You've now lost your value and place within the family.

At school, you are becoming less popular and more depressed. You are irritable, agitated and often struggle to manage your feelings. When you reach out to your father about how you feel, he lashes out at you and calls you worthless.

You begin to head down a destructive path when one night you get your hands on some beer and call your friends to go hang out. Your friends add fuel to the fire with drugs and the suggestion that you burglarize a few houses "just for fun." Your path of destruction ultimately leads to being caught by the police, running in a field after burglarizing a home. You are arrested and held in the Juvenile Detention Center.

You are given one chance to get your life back on the right path when you receive probation and are court ordered to participate in outpatient therapy at SalusCare. Outpatient therapy and talking about your parents' divorce motivates you to develop a healthier self-identity. Your individual and family therapy sessions (including therapy with your father) allow you to gain insight into your actions, express emotions and better communicate with your family. Your family therapy pays dividends, too, as a more positive and loving relationship is forged among you, your sister and parents.

Who are you now?
 Thanks to SalusCare, you are a young man on the path to success – a high school honor student working at a local mall – who has developed a more positive self-worth and attitude.

Thanks to your support, SalusCare helps thousands of adults and children each year just like Eddie. Whether it's through mental health or substance abuse outpatient therapy, residential treatment, community-based services or emergency services, we are here to help, regardless of ability to pay for services.

But we can't do it alone.
 We need your help to continue the good work we do. Join us TODAY by making a tax-deductible investment to help save someone's life. Every dollar you give puts hope and recovery within reach for others like Eddie.

*Help a neighbor. Help a friend.
